Doughnut Delight

Not too many of man's inventions can roll with the punches like the timetested inner tube, a rarity now in the era of tubeless tires. When one comes along in a giant size, youngsters like Tim Perry, sister Kathy, brother Jim, and Linda Jackson, all of Blanshard Court, found it irresistible as make-believe boat, tunnel and wrestling mat. It offered another plus, too. After a long dry summer, even a grassy lawn gets baked hard but a big rubber doughnut makes for · pleasingly soft landings. (John McKay photos.)

Alberta Turning 'Un-Canadian'

Times News Services

OTTAWA - A bitter confrontation, which could lead to a constitutional battle in the courts, is shaping up between Alberta and the federal government over Ottawa's imposition of an export tax on oil.

Alberta claims it owns the oil and Ottawa has no business assuming ownership and imposing an export tax with the funds collected to be di-verted into the federal trea-

Premier Lougheed said that the province intends to "fight back in every way we can.

"This appears to be the most discriminatory action taken by a federal government against a particular province in the history of confederation," Lougheed told the Calgary Canadian Club.

'We will use every weapon and every resource we can to minimize its damage to the Alberta economy.

We are going to be forced take certain action we do not want to take and would not otherwise take."

Lougheed said the "future actions" his government will take — which won't necessarily be made public for some could be called "un-Canadian."

The premier said the federal action would have severe consequences on the Canadian petroleum industry and would jeopardize future oil explora-

Without a viable petroleum industry the economy of this province would be close to that of a have-not province, comparable to Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

LARGE FISH KILL AT NEROUTSOS

Service said Friday effluent from the Rayonier Canada Ltd., pulpamill in this north island community is believed responsible for a large kill of herring and hake at Neroutsos Inlet.

Bob McLaren, EPS region director, said an estimated 30,000 herring and small numbers of hake were found Monday floating in the inlet some two miles from the mill. The dead fish were discovered by a federal fisheries officer three days after the mill resumed production following a five-day closure for its annual maintenance program. John Watkins, an EPS spokesman, said it appeared the fish had entered the inlet during the closure, which would have allowed an improvement in water quality, then were asphyxiated in the effluent after the mill resumed operations.

A Rayonier spokesman said the mill's environmental quality personnel were co-operating with federal agencies to determine the exact cause of the kill.

Pension Boosts Passed

OTTAWA (CP) - Increases in family allowances and old age and civil service pensions became law Friday.

Effective Oct. 1, the basic old age pension for a single person rises to $105.30 a month from $100. Persons receiving the guaranteed income supplement, as most pensioners do, will receive old age cheques of $179.16, up from $170.14.

The family allowance next month will be $12 for each child, up from an average of $7.21 a month a child. This is an interim increase designed to help families cope with inflation until a proposed allowance program raising the average monthly payment to $20 a child becomes effective Jan. 1, 1974.

Crow Caught in Odd Act

You don't have to travel hundreds of miles to see nature in its purest form, in the raw so to speak.

You can often find it down town, in a city park.

George Hopping of Begbie Street discovered this last week during that late-summer warm spell we were enjoying. George was on his daily constitutional in Stadacona Park, soaking up the sun and enjoying the antics of the termite-catching flights of starlings, when he saw something that, for the moment at least, made him wonder about the condition of his eyes. It began with a slight of about a dozen small, sparrowsize birds passing over the park and ended with George scouring the shrubbery in search of a crow and one of the small birds.

In between, George had seen a crow, one that had been sitting quietly atop a power pole, launch itself after the passing flock, ovetake it snatch one of the birds pole and start feeding on it.

away and fluttered down into the shrubbery with the crow not far behind

George never did find either the crow or its victim but he is convinced that the hunter was a crow and that it did overtake and snatch a flying bird out of the air.

I emphasize this because despite the traditional howls of protest against crows and their food habits — particularly where those food habits include eating young birds — I know of no records of a crow taking a bird in the way George described.

Crows, like most birds and mammals, are opportunists They will eat almost anything

After a few tentative pecks have not been considered part from the crow, the bird got of this diet in the past simply because few people believe a crow could overtake a healthy bird in flight.

> And therin may lie an explanation. Did the more observant crow see something in one bird's actions that indicated weakness? Or was the strike simply a lucky stroke of opportunism?

> From George's description that the crow just stooped into the flock and came out with a conclude that the crow was lucky, it was a chance capture and not likely to occur

Conservative Leader Stanfield scarcely needs extra incentive to go into high gear on his theme that the way to conquer inflation is to impose a freeze on prices and wages. However, he took full advantage of the latest figures, and was not at all persuaded by Finance Minister Turner's assertion that a freeze would be of no value in the present circumstances. Those circumstances, said Mr. Turner, embrace international causes, complex domestic forces which would not respond to Mr. Stanfield's controls, and evidence that any promising effects shown by temporary control measures appear invariably to be wiped out as soon as the controls are lifted.

The United States experience provided a case in point. The

This week's report on the con- freeze on meat prices was immediately followed by a move among producers to withhold meat from the market in the expectation of better returns when the controls were relaxed. The result was a serious shortage of meat, and great upward pressure on prices which was demonstrated in immediate skyrocketing when the freeze was relaxed. Mr. Turner saw no value in repeating such an experiment in Canada.

> He might usefully have noted the British experience as well, which has been spread over a number of years.

A report of the Food Prices Review Board notes that Britain embarked some 25 years ago on a policy of voluntary restraint on wages, made temporary attempts several years later to impose a plateau on prices, and followed this with another effort to win a voluntary curb on wage increases. Other income-control devices followed, until the six-month freeze on prices and incomes in 1966 and the succeeding half-year of only slight relaxation. A later scheme on a more voluntary basis lasted little longer than a year, and still more

The report concludes that while there were favorable and unfavorable short-term effects, "over the longer-run the studies have not found any lasting effect." The failure of Canada's efforts to hold the line through voluntary restraint by management and labor was even quicker than that in Britain, and there is no evidence that compulsory methods here would be more successful than in that country. That, of course, does not relieve the government in Ottawa of the responsibility to find ameliorative policies that would ease the inflationary trend.

Obviously, partial moves have had little effect, although Canada's inflationary situation is better than that of some countries of comparable development and size. Closer control of government spending which increases purchasing power without contributing to production, and much greater encouragement of projects to increase the output of goods, should be given higher priority.

original estimate of $2 billions for U.S. municipal treatment in the entire Basin by 1975, a commitment of $627 millions in the first year (actually, the first year and a half) would indicate the U.S. is significantly behind schedule.

The IJC, of course, is composed of representatives from both sides and a certain obscurity must be expected in its pronouncements. But if it is going to muddy the waters with this kind of progress reporting, it will not be long in losing the public pressure and support which brought about the clean-up program in the first place.

LAKE SUPERIOR

... pollution not always visible Perhaps the brightest side of the report concerns the effectiveness to date of measures to reduce phosphorous inputs trol the rate of eutrophication. Canada has limited the phosphorous content of detergents to five per cent (most commercial detergents used to contain 16 to 38 per cent), and the States of Michigan, Indiana and New York have similar legislation. Phosphorous removal facilities at 144 treatment plants on the Canadian side of the Basin will be operational by the end of this year and Ohio has a crash program for major treatment plants by

Politically Sensitive

On the question of industrial waste treatment, probably the most politically sensitive aspect of the pollution problem, the Commission talks a lot but says little, admitting that it does not yet have enough data (it doesn't say why) to estimate the scope and progress of remedial programs. It concludes that much remains to be done and recommends that both governments "accelerate" enforcement. Since the agreement was signed, the report notes, about $30 millions have been committed for some 120 industrial waste treatment projects in Ontario. No figures are given for the

The report is more pointed, however, in noting that both sides have failed to adopt compatible regulations to control waste discharges from shipping vessels which regulations, according to the agreement, should have been in effect by April 15 last. Both sides agree in principle that all ships should be equipped with no-discharge containers but the U.S. wants to permit up to five years to comply, while Canada is still assessing the problem of on-shore pump-out facili-

The Commission said both governments should get with it and agree on regulations, and on programs to provide pump-out facilities, by the end of this

Uneven Progress in the Lakes

April 15, 1972, there has been Canadian concern-notably from the Ontario government-that the U.S. would fail to put its money where its mouth was. The agreement is not a treaty in U.S. terms and therefore does not bind the U.S. Congress to financial implementation.

It appears from the Commission's reging its feet somewhat, but not because money. Ironically, President Nixon and his executive branch are refusing to spend all the money voted, apparently for anti-inflation reasons.

Analysis Difficult

Just what the shortfall amounts to is impossible to determine from the report. which seems to be unduly anxious to avoid offending U.S. sensibilities. Statistics are not reported in a way to facilitate analysis, a fact which is deliberate, one can only assume, on the IJC's part. The Commission, for example, refers to its own 1970 report on the Lower Lakes (Lake Erie, Lake Ontario and the International Section of the St. Lawrence River) which estimated the cost of remedial municipal waste treatment on the American side at $630 millions in 1968 projects have been approved since the agreement was signed for a total cost of $627 millions—"an amount that is a major portion of the total required for municipal waste in the U.S.'

But on closer reading it is clear that these 107 projects are scattered throughout the Great Lakes Basin and, apart from specific references, no indication is given of how concentrated they may be in the Lower Lakes, which is the area to which the $630 million target (plus escalation in costs) applies. If the concentration is high, then satisfactory progress can be claimed: however, against an

For an interesting hour or so go out along the Island Highway commencing at the start of the Malahat Drive. Just park your car and explore the rock faces. Here you can see the wonders of plant life growing and perhaps it will give you an understanding of the power of vegetation, how it rebuilds after man has in many ways attempted to break it down. Many kinds of lichens have established themselves over the past few years while others are just beginning to gain a foothold where man has blasted rock to make a road.

Most of the rock-climbing lichens are termed crustose and to remove them you have to sorape them off. They range in many colors and patterns. If you look closely you can see that each one has a tiny little spore capsule. Where there is little more foothold the lichens are foliose, or leaf-like, others are fruiticose, or shrub like. They are all soil makers and have the power to break down rock.

Close by there are sure to be moss patches, though at this time of the year they will be dull and brown. But when the rains come they will be green again.

If you look closely you can see many of the flowering plants that have now found a small patch of soil to live in.

Their seeds have been carried by the wind, and over time the leaves have broken down producing more soil. Now you 🦠 find shrubs growing such as huckleberry and ocean spray. The root system of these plants creates more soil as their roots penetrate the rock in search of moisture.

Now we get some of the most interesting of all rock face plants. These are the conifers such as the Douglas firs, cedars, and in some places where perhaps there is a small trickle of water, the hemlocks have taken hold.

Examining them closely, you can see by the branch whorls just how old these little trees are. Here again one just marvels at the ability of the trees to establish themselves in the rather harsh conditions where they live, exposed to winds, hot dry suns and winter frosts.

One wonders how long they will survive. How do their very tiny hair-like roots manage to find the small cracks in the rocks where they can get water? Can they absorb it from the rocks or do they find small drops lodged in the cracks?

Even now after our dry summer these little trees are still fresh and green. There is no doubt that the power of green living plants is one of the greatest on earth.

Ulster's New Assembly Key to British Strategy

BELFAST — the Northern Ireland Assembly meets this month for the second time. The first meeting, at the end of July, ended in uproar. This next session is not expected to be any quieter.

The assembly is the central feature of the British government's plans for Northern Ireland, and its success is essential. tial for the success of present British policy. It does not have long to prove itself: if by next March the assembly has failed to achieve an accept-able viability it will be suspended and Westminster will again assume direct responsibility for the running of the

The problem that the assembly faces is in fact its own existence. In 1972 the British Government suspended the Northern Ireland government at Stormont Castle in Belfast and introduced direct rule from Westminster through the newly-appointed Secretary of State for the province, Wil-liam Whitelaw. The old Protestant Unionist government was deprived of power in a calculated attempt at placating Catholic opinion, which was vehemently opposed to the Unionist Party. But it was also a blow to the majority Protestant community, which cherished the local Parliament and generally still de-mands its return. The uproar in the first assembly was caused by a new coalition of Loyalists, i.e. right-wing Protestants, led by William Craig of the Vanguard Unionist Progressive Party and the Rev. Ian Paisley of the Demo-

The old Stormont governnent enjoyed all the privileges and pomp of power. The parliament arrayed itself in most of the antique customs of Westminster, which for 50 years allowed it to establish precedent for unques-d rule. Unquestioned, that is, outside Ireland. Each generation in Northern Ireland has seen Catholic upris-ings and wholesale internment as members of the mi-nority Catholic community, resentful of Protestant domi-nation and its own underprivileged position, sought to achieve union with the Irish now wants to put in its palce an assembly in which Protestant-Catholic power sharing is built in. From this assembly, elected through proportional representation, Whitelaw will choose an executive which will be responsible for much, but by no means all, of the ng of the province.

Here is the first obstacle. The Loyalists, and members of the Unionist Party who are opposed to the British propos-als and have refused to follow the line of the party leader, Brian Faulkner, will not cooperate in any sense in the formation of the executive. Indeed, at the first session they would not even co-operate with the new speaker, harassed into panic, he fled the chamber without formally adjourning the meeting.

The avowed anti-assembly group numbers 27 out of the assembly's 78 representatives, and it is predicted that up to 10 of Faulkner's 20 official Unionists could defect to them when it comes to the crunch. At the moment the Unionist Party's official position is to work within the assembly

The position of the anti-Assembly group is clear. They want their government back with the various ministries and all the trappings of What the assembly offers is limited power. It will not, for example, be able to legislate on the troublesome issue of law and order. Other areas can be legislated for only by agreement with West-minister, and the actual gov-ernment of the province will continue to remain under the close scurtiny of a permanent secretary of state. All this is bad enough for Protestants but what seems to strike deepest is the issue of powersharing. The executive, which will consist of the heads of the various departments which will replace the old Minis-olics and Protestants. If the assembly is going to work it will mean that Brian Faulkner, the former premier, is going to have to lead his presumably truncated party into office with the main Catholic party, the Social Democratic and Labor Party. At the moment, the RUC cannot enter most Catholic areas in Belfast, Londonderry and other large towns. But Protestants on all sides refuse to countenance any interference with the police.

The SDLP also wants an end to internment — an issue upon which the assembly has no authority — and, yet more controversially, a Council of Ireland involving the Dublin

Protestants seem to regard a Council of Ireland as some kind of deadly fungus that will engulf them in a united Ireland the moment they turn their backs. Mention of the name alone is enough to cause bulging jugulars among Loyalists; the SDLP suggestion that the Council should eventually have legislative power is synonymous to most Protestants with handing over the province to the

Since the assembly met, the British government has been hoping that representatives of two communities would some sort of deal. Nor merely has there been no deal-there have also been no get-togethers. All sides seem to have dug in and to be peering at each other through periscopes. The British govern-ment, meanwhile, is clearly getting impatient. The British Prime Minister, Edward Heath, made that clear during his recent visit.

What is widely expected is that if by next year the as-sembly is making no headway, the British governmen will start making noises about the withdrawal of the considerable subsidies the province at present enjoys. It might not be an enticement to romance in high places in Beljust bring about a marriage of convenience between Catholic and Protestant leaders.

Various explanations have been advanced, more or less convincing. A recent report issued by the ministry of social affairs reluctantly admits that the welfare state may have produced unforseen strains; that the collective ethos of Sweden may be frustrating and irksome, producing anti-social

But the official viewpoint remains that crime, even in the case of the bank vault drama, is the fault of society rather than the criminal. It is part of the behaviorist dogma which inspires the Swedish establishment. In this view, people are not responsible for their actions, but are clean slates to be written on by outside hands. The authorities stressed this attitude, even at the height of the bank vault drama, hinting that it was everybody's fault, not just the robbers'

Rush to Industrialize For Sovereignty Sake

ia, the wolf of Rome suckling Romulus and Remus is now more relevant symbol of the and nationalist ambitions than the hammer and sickle.

Behind the Romanians' rebuff to the Soviet Union's dominance, begun a decade ago, is a deep consciousness of history as a colony of the Roman empire, and a legacy of blood, language and culture setting Romanians apart from their Slavic neighbors.

Rich in oil, coal, bauxite, timber and other resources, Romania now is driving hard to become an advanced industrial society, spurred by a conviction that political sovereignty can be assured only economic sovereignty. Throughout the country.

new factories — most with equipment from the West owd the outskirts of cities. Many factories are being built even in remote regions barely accessible over rough and rut ted roads.

Romania must join the ranks of advanced industrial countries by 1990, President Nicolae, Ceausescu has de-clared, or will never succeed in catching up.

To achieve this Romania is turning increasingly to Western technology, buying equipment and production licenses with scarce hard currency.

As a measure of the country's industrial ambitions, steel production is planned to rise to over 20 milion tons by 1990, a sizable increase from the 6.5 million tons in 1970. Other industrial goals are similar, and some even core ambitious.

Romania also has grand plans for urban development, and has already completed theatres and public buildings of awesome architecture and Clothing is of inferior quality and expensive, although Rumania produces good shoes, shirts and other articles for export.

It is common for foreigners to be approached by Romanians hopeful of buying his shirts, shoes, sweaters as well as dollars.

Romanians in general are wary about expressing their grievances too loudly. A visitor can wander the broad boulevards, museums and other attractions of Bucharest, talk with table companions in the crowded cafes and restaurants and gain little specife evidence of discontent.

Guardians Gather Behind Constitution

By TED LEWIS, The Nation

The political significance of Senator Ervin's interpretation of the national crisis cannot be overemphasized. The grandfatherly chairman of the Senate Watergate investiga-tion is a respected expert on the constitution. He believes we are undergoing the greatest constitutional crisis in the history of the republic, greater even than that posed by the Civil War.

The North Carolina Senator alarmed about the danger of corruption of the Constitu-tion, that we are engaged in a great confrontation between those forces that would manthe Constitution to their own political purposes, and those that consider the document a hallowed covenant spelling out precisely the form of government and the extent of individual and prop-

It is the Fascist mentality uncovered in the Nixon White thouse that worries Ervin, the totalitarian state methodology of hired spies, infiltrators, burglars and rumor mongers, the enemy lists of political opponents, of blueprints on how to rig an election.

Ervin's interpretation of the crisis has been seized on avid-ly by political conservatives. They too want to be listed as guardians of the Constitution.

THE STATE AND THE PRESS

By PHILLIPPE GAGNON Ottawa Le Droit

The acquisition of several newspapers by one owner ... has had information professionals concerned for some time. On the strict economic level, with regard to organiza tion and administration, the regrouping of several newspapers under one empire can present some advantages.

But when one examines this henomenon in the light of information, the public's right to information, one can honestly see that certain ques-

That's the indirect message one can take from a recent decision of the tax review board in a case which has application to thousands of Canadian small business

The lesson to be learned is that although life insurance is the best business and tax deoneself when in partnership, all the details of the tax law be meticulously observed if one is to escape un-happy death tax results.

Ever since the introduction of death and succession duties it has become fairly standard practise for businessmen to insure their lives at least for the amount of death taxes their estate will have to pay on their departure. The chief reason is that most privately owned businesses aren't liquid and unless the owner has built up liquid assets outside of his business, it may have to be sold at an inopportune time when he dies, in order to meet the succession duty bill.

In recent years the use of life insurance hs assumed considerable significance business partnership, incorporated or otherwise. It is normal for two shareholders who each own shares in their business to enter into an agreement which provides that on the death of the first to go, the survivor will buy

Mr. Cardin, in a decision which might have gone either way, ruled that although the policy transfer to B hadn't been forregistered before A's death, the written agreement between the two brothers under which it was agreed that B would take over that insurance plus the fact that B had made all the premium payments, were sufficient evidence that B and not A was the owner of the life inable as part of A's estate.

This case ended happily for these parties but many aren't as fortunate. The tax costs of making a slip can be very substantial, particularly in those provinces where the

It is a relatively easy matter to do it right, but all too frequently businessmen rely on only their insurance agent to put through their death buy-out transaction. He may be a skilled life underwriter but he's not a lawyer and in-terpreting the tax law is not his field of expertise.

Because new succession duty legislation has been introduced in many provinces, businesses contemplating the same type of arrangement should make certain their plan complies with the new law. #### MONEY DOESN'T HAVE TO STOP WORKING JUST BECAUSE IT'S IN A SAFE PLACE.

If you've accumulated any money in your lifetime, you already know that buried funds simply don't grow. So, even if you retire, you want your money to make a little money on the side, even while it provides you with a regular monthly income. Canadian Investment Fund Withdrawal Plans, available through T. A. Richardson, provide maximum safety of your principal through diversification of investment. They provide regular monthly incomes. They allow your capital to continue growing at a moderate rate. And you have access to your capital if it's required at any time.

Talk to Larry Kirzinger at our Victoria office. He can explain the Systematic Withdrawal Plan, point by point. It's well worth knowing, particularly if you've retired or plan to in the near future.

20 Years Later Kitimat Shows Some Tarnish

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP) — They called it a 20th-century miracle—the city of the future today, a pioneer community with all modern conveniences.

Now, 20 years after the building of Kitimat, the sores are starting to show through and British Columbia's Alumi-num City is revealed for what it really is: a city thrown up fast and often cheaply, an in-stant community without

The problems are many.

The Aluminum Co. of Canada (Alcan) cannot keep its work force; some houses are refused the conventional first mortgage, although none were built before 1953; there are said to be nine single men for each eligible woman, with nowhere for them to meet.

There are complaints of low wages and high prices, of lack of scheduled bus serv-ices, of a take-it-or-leave-it at-titude in stores, of a lack of facilities for those who want a different lifestyle than the one the town offers.

the town offers.

Planned and predicted for a population of 50,000, the community has only 12,500 residents and predictions are that it won't grow much.

During its construction,

Kitimat was lauded every- detail the first modern, com-

Alcan, which has spent $500 million to build the second-largest aluminum smelter in the Western world, called in top planners and even a sociologist to design the townsite.
The Canadian Geographic
Journal later said:

"With infinite attention to pletely new city of the 20th century in North America came into existence. . . If 20th century knowledge, science and engineering can build the kind of city where people like to live, Kitimat should be it."

It should have been, with its parks, playgrounds and recre-ational areas occupying half the townsite area, streets designed to separate homes from through traffic, walkways linking the neighbor-hoods into which the town is divided, a setting among mountains snow-capped even

But most lots are small, houses were built hurriedly and to low standards and planners did not look ahead to the day when many facilities would have two cars, or a camper or boat. Even space for essentials like clotheslines was forgotten. The one hotel, containing the only beer parlor, was lo-cated directly in the path of smoke and fallout from the smelter and far from the resi-

Kitimat has been called a group of suburbs looking for a city, but municipal administrator Art Currie, who has lived here for 18 years, thinks that attitude is changing.

The sport is called parasailing. It's relatively new, and catching on fast, but on Vancouver Island it has only one

Al Scott, 22, of 4541 Bissen den Place, Victoria, bought one of the new para sail chutes three weeks ago. He ordered it from California at a cost of $380. Since he bought the chute.

Scott has been up three times, gliding and floating 200 feet above Elk Lake. 'I got right up in the air the first time I tried it. I couldn't believe it," Scott said. Friday evening, the third time Scott tried out the sport, he got up in the air, but came down faster than expected.

"The chute caught on one of the people who was holding it up while I was just getting off the ground," Scott said today.

"I got up in the air all right, but at about 75 feet the canopy ripped and I came down pretty fast." Scott escaped uninjured, except for a ringing in his ears, but the accident hasn't put him off parasailing.

As soon as he can get the wo-foot rip mended, he'll be back up again.

"It's really quite simple. All you need is common sense." The chute is much like a normal sky diving chute. It's about 25 feet wide and at-tached by lines to whoever is brave enough to give it a try.

A 300-foot rope joins the boat and the flier. The flier stands on the ground near the water, preferably on a grassy area with a slight incline

The boat moves off into the water, slowly, and within a

There is no limit to the amount of time the flier can stay up, except the amount of gas in the boat's tank.

"You could soar for hours,"

"It's not tiring, "in fact, there's not really any body exertion involved at all. It's the same sort of sensation you get in sky-diving, except for the free-fall and except for the fact that you're actually being dragged through the air

"There's no control possible on the chute. Apparently the manufacturers can't put control toggles on the para sail-chutes. But that's not really any problem because the boat beneath you is doing the controlling for you."

A former member of the Victoria Skydiving Club, Scott got hooked on parasailing it in a parachuting manual.

He has now given up sky-diving in favor of sky-sailing. The sport is versatile. can be done in summer. winter, on water or on land.

So far, Scott has only tried the summer-water combination, but he said he was "itching" to try the others.

"It's just as easy to do on land. All you need is a place to do it. The airport would be great but the people there probably wouldn't appreciate 'You don't need a powerful truck or car to get off the ground. You could do it with a Volkswagen, the wind does most of the work."

Scott thinks the sport could catch on, but it's expense may put a lot of people off.

Parasailing requires an initial output of about $450 - $350 for the chute and $100 for one to drive the boat, one to sit in the back of the boat and watch for trouble and two to stand beheind the flier before take-off and hold the chute

Unlike sky-diving, in parasailing there is no special way or trick to packing the can-opy. It is folded up any old way and then held out behind the filer as he stands on the ground. With the first tug of the boat rope, the chute fills with air and the flier is off.

"These people who help are really important in parasail-ing. The driver of the boat has to know what he's doing and the observer in the back of the boat has to keep an eye out in case anything goes

But it's unlikely anything will go wrong, Scott

City Blueprints Future For Central Districts

The Central Area study, latest in a series of reports dealing with clearly defined areas of Victoria, has been published as a broad statement of policy for shaping the future of the city's heartland.

Like the Victoria West and James Bay studies which preceded it, the report is intend-ed to elicit maximum public debate before city council establishes specific land-use polieies based on its recommen-dation and then locks those into an official community outbreak of school phobia each fall, cases in Victoria seem relatively few, says a local child psychiatrist.

Dr. Philip Ney suggests that situation is flattering to parents and the school system in Victoria or to both.

A phobia is an intense fear and school phobia occurs when children with "separation anxiety" are sent to school.

Dr. Quentin Rae-Grant, chief psychiatrist at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. says there is a flood of school phobia after. every vacation.

He described the symptoms as nausea, dizziness, diarrhea, headaches, heart palpitations, breathing difficulties, cramps and eyesight problems

A school phobic child has an overwhelming fear of entering a classroom and refuses to budge from home despite coaxing, threats and punishment, said Rae-Grant

This can produce the paradox of children with above-average intelligence screaming, punishment rather than agreeing to go to James Wilkes of the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in Toronto says the school phobic may become violent if forced to attend. He traces the root of the problem to the child's home life.

'While the mother may honestly believe that she wants her child to go to school, by subtle messages she'll be telling him that it's all right to stay at home with her.'

The mother is often over-protective and dominating, he said, and the child becomes so bound to her that the prospect of leaving unleashes a tidal wave of anxiety, he said. Doctors agree that part of the fear arises from the child fearing he will be beaten up school bullies or humiliated by an insensitive teacher. Ney says there has usually been a major separation in the life of the school phobic before school comes along, possibly the loss of a parent or desertion by a father.

Already frightened badly by one separation, the phobic sees starting school or returning to it as another break. Sensitive teachers are aware of the difference between a truant and a phobic, says Ney. The phobic tends to stay home while the ds for some place like the Ogden

One each of pear, cherry and plum won't work. These three fruits must have two different compatible varieties to effect cross pollination in order to obtain a reasonable crop. That means six trees instead of three! Have you room for a total of eight

The minimum planting distance for fruit trees is 25 feet in all directions. This distance is considered essential for sufficient light and air to reach each tree for good cropping and the limiting of fungus dis-

Another problem is the property line. Trees should be set 15 feet from all property lines so that you can prune and pick from your own property when the trees have reached full size. It also avoids future arguments as to your neighbors' rights to cut roots. lop off branches, or pick fruit that invade his garden space.

The idea of chairs and tables under the trees presupposes a beautiful stretch of grass. Ideal, if you can solve one problem. Fruit trees are fertilized once only, in late February.

Any fertilizer reaching the roots later in the season has an adverse effect on the keepqualities of the fruit (rapid storage rot) and encourages wild growth the fol-lowing season and less fruit production.

On the other hand, grass must receive three applica-tions of complete fertilizer and three applications of sulphate of ammonia each sea

As to varieties, if you are going to sacrifice a mixed garden to grow fruit, pass up the commercial varieties and grow the high quality, deli-cious varieties that are too tender to ship and therefore never seen in a store.

These varieties are available from local nurseries which specialize in growing fruit trees. Because home gardeners do not know these varieties the demand is small stocks always limited They are only dug on order, so place your order early.

The fall lists are already out, and include the newer Granny Smith apples, and the older Close, Cortland, Golden Bramley Seedling, and Winter Banana.

Morello (a small tree), Stel-la, and Van cherries are listed, Clap's Favourite and Flemish Beauty pears; Greengage, Victoria, and Bur-bank plums, Bonanza dwarf apricots, nectarines

Planting time starts in October as soon as the leaves have fallen. The holes are prepared now while the soil is dry, and the heaps of soil covered after the first rains to keep them dry enough to around the roots by Stakes are made and driven into the planting holes and proper ties attached. With everything ready, planting can be an easy and pleasant job between storms.

The final decision to grow fruit, the different kinds to include, and the number of trees the property can hold, must be yours. Your ability to master the art of pruning each kind is another factor that will determine the results

Careful consideration of the points brought out in this article should help you make wise decision, and prevent the mistakes dozens of local gar-deners have made and the problems they are now trying > you that the next great advance in psychological group technology will probably be in Reticence Training. Surely you will agree that a certain amount of reticence is needed for mental health in this age of ostentatious openness.

A few weeks earlier he had attended a workshop on "Re-newing the Congregation", which to his dismay, turned out to be another of those lit-tle gatherings at which pastors renew the Church by doing emotional strip-teases in front of one another. He got the giggles when the leader referred to the participants as "Groupies.". When asked what he found so funny he said that he had suddenly remembered, from his rural boyhood, that "groupie" is an unsightly disease of poultry. From then on he was pretty much ignored by the others, and it was then

A Reticence Training Group, he explained to me, consists of from five to nine members. They will not wear name tags, but at the first session they may mumble their surnames once. The leader, who does not give his name, demands that the others call him "Sir" (or "Ma'am," if a woman is in charge). He begins by announcing a topic for discussion. It must be a topic about which no member can have strong feelings: e.g.: "The Crisis in the Plorial Industry in Ecuador." Members, of course, may begin talking about other that he hit on the idea of Reti-topics. Each should try to talk as much as he can. They may interrupt one another, play adversary roles, quote bogus statistics and questionable facts. But they must refrain from expressing personal opinions or telling one another about their feelings.

No fees will be charged, but each session will be financed (honorarium for the leader; coffee and sandwiches for all) by fines. Each participant must have a $10 roll of quarters. A fine of 25 cents will be imposed on anyone using words such as "empathy," "relevant," "interpersonal," "relate," "sensitive." "charisma" "feed tive," "charisma," "feed-back." The fine will be 50 cents for expressions such as "I'm going to be very frank with you," "My gut reaction is," "Why did you say that? What's your motivation?," "I wonder about your sexual at-titudes," and the such. One dollar will be the fine, im-posed by majority vote, for anyone becoming conspicuously emotional in the discus-

M.I.F. acknowledged that this technique is at present very rudimentary, but he feels that it provides a good start. He knows that Reticence Training is highly artificial but he points out that there is tificiality in all enterprises in group psychology, as there is in all training sessions, even in sports. "What really in sports. "What really counts," he said, "is what you do when you leave the labora-

CHURCHMEN SET TO LET BLOOD

United Press International Episcopalians are girding or their triennial family.

The intramural bloodletting, officially known as the 64th general convention of the epigeneral convention of the epi-scopal church will take place in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29 through Oct. 11.

On hand will be about 200 bishops and 896 elected "dep-uties," half clergy and half laity, representing the 112 Episcopal dioceses of the United States. United States.

About 30,000 other Epis-copalians will show up to lobby for pet causes, attend side meetings of women's and mission groups, or simply to watch the action.

The most important business will be transacted away from the convention floor, in smoke-filled hotel rooms. It is the choice of a new presiding bishop of the church — the American equivalent of England's archbishop of Canter-

A nominating committee headed by Bishop Robert Gib-son of Virginia will suggest three incumbent bishops as possible successors to the Rt. Rev. John Hines, who is retiring after ten stormy years as Hines has been an ardent exponent of church involve-ment in social problems and the use of church funds for such causes as promoting economic and political power among Blacks, Indians, Chicanos and other minorities.

PLAN NO. 14

For on-the-spot convenience build a mobile island mixing centre because this idea is so adaptable.

Carefully examine its features. Spice containers nest in a shallow drawer. Electric ap pliances, such as a mixer and blender pull out on an easily cleaned tray.

Casseroles and cake pans are stacked alongside a pull-out rack for muffin pans and pie plates.

drawer for flat utensils and measuring cup is above the maple cutting board.

A deep drawer holds bowls, sifters, rolling pin.

Cookie sheets and trays stand beside double-decker vinyl-covered drawers for packaged foods or other odds and ends such as cook books.

This is a project which will delight the lady of the house for years to come.

"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says Harrison trichologist to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. They are sending a specialist here to advise men and women how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to Save and Improve Your Hair Demonstrated by Expert Here Mon. & Tues.

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and improving the appearance of thicker hair will be demonstrated in Victoria this Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 17-18.

This news was released here today by Harrison Hair & Scalpseialists. In their announcement, they named trichologist J. Kerr to conduct the Victoria clinic. Mr. Kerr will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1:00 to 8:00 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the Sussex Apts. hotel.

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do. But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is similar to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is septiment. Supported they support to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is supported to overcome the av

Saturday Movies

The Long Gray Line (xxx), on 13 at 8. John Ford directed this sentimental 1955 drama about an Irish immigrant who finds a home and love at West Point, starring Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara.

Irma La Douce (xxxx), on 4 at 8:30. Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine give toph performances in this non-musical version of the Broadway comedy hit. The film is set in the back alleys of Paris, where a goodhumored streetwalker forms an unusual friendship with a naive young policeman. Recommended!

Play Misty For Me (xx), on 8 at 9. A 1971 suspense tale about a popular California disc jockey who discovers that his most ardent fan is a dangerous psychotic with a fondness for knives. Clint Eastwood, directed and stars and the supporting cast in-cludes Jessica Walter and Donna Mills. A Lesson in Love, on 9 at 9. A change of pace for Ingmar Bergman as he mixes high comedy and slapstick in this 1953 satire on extra-marital affairs. Eva Dahlbeck and Gunar Bjornstrant star.

Thunder in the East (xx), on 11 at 9. A moderately entertaining 1953 adventure-drama about a group of displaced persons and an American soldier of fortune caught up in the new-found indepen-dence fever in India, starring Alan Ladd and Deborah Kerr.

Gigi (xxxx), on 12 at 9. A delightful 1958 Lerner and Lowe musical adaptation of Colette's novel of turn-of-thecentury Paris starring Leslie Caron, Louis Jourdan, Maurice Chevalier and Hermione Gingold. It's about a handsome man-about-town who discovers his young charge has suddenly grown into a lovely young woman. Chevalier sings his famous Thank Heaven for Little Gammera (x), on 13 at 10:30. Japanese-made sci-fi

The Devil at 4 O'clock (xx), on 7 at 11. An aging priest and three convicts undertake a perilous rescue mission when a tropic island is threat-ened by a volcanic eruption in this 1961 drama starring Spencer Tracy and Frank Sin-

Sylvia (xx), on 5 at 11:15. A good cast (Carroll Baker, George Maharis, Peter Lawford and Ann Southern) spark this otherwise routine 1965 drama about a beautiful poetess with a sordid past.

Play Misty For Me (xx), on 6 at 11:15. (See earlier this evening for details.)
Up the Down Stalrease (xxxx), on 12 at 11:15. Bel Kaufman's perceptive best-selling novel about the experiences of a young teacher in a New York high school is transferred beautifully to the screen in this 1967 production starring Sandy Dennis, Eileen Heckart and Jean Stapleton. Marooned (xxx), on 8 at 11:30. Oscar-winning special effects and a good cast (Gregory Peck, Richard Crenna, David Janssen, Gene Hackman and Lee Grant) high-lights this 1969 drama about a complicated rescue attempt of astronauts trapped in orbit. Viva Max (xxx), on 2 at 11:40. A 1970 comedy starring Peter Ustinov as a Mexican general leading a present day reoccupation of the Alamo.

Jonathan Winters and Pamela

The Proud Ones (xx), on 4 at 11:45. A better-than-average western about a guntry and balk the law, filmed 1956 and starring Robert Ryan, Virginia Mayo and Jef-

Beginning of the End (x), on 13 at 12:45. Giant grass-hoppers menace the world in phony 1957 sci-fi drama that Peter Graves would probably like to forget he starred

Pakistani Politics on Front Burner Despite Floods, New Constitution

RAWALPINDI - Neither the flood disaster nor the passage of a new constitution has taken the heat out of Pakistani politics. Confrontation between Prime Minister Zulfi-qur Ali Bhutto and his opponents has become so bitter that many people now fear the violence that has already erupted in the southwestern province of Baluchistan, could spread to other provinces.

Violence Stepped Up

Both sides have stepped up the violence, in the remote Buluchistan Hills there are fresh casualties every week in skirmishes between troops and a growing number of guerrillas. Last month the combined opposition parties in the United Democratic Front launched a countryside civil disobedience movement deliberately flouting a law banning processions — to protest against Bhutto's highhanded treatment of his crit-

The opposition's central complaint is that Bhutto used compaint is that Entitio used emergency powers to dismiss the elected government in Baluchistan which was controlled by parties opposing him at the federal centre. More generally, it complains of high-handed agreests (in of high-handed arrests (in-cluding, recently, all the leaders of the National Awami Party in Baluchistan), all the leaders of the National Wami Party in Baluchistan), the use of emergency powers for political ends, a long series of actions against newspapers, and the habit of hounding poltical opponents with spurious lawsuits and prosecutions.

New Arrests

The authorities responded to the movement with a wave of new arrests — several hundred opposition leaders and party workers have been rounded up in the last three weeks. Some political prisoners have been grossly ill-treated, others have been arrested in an arbitrary and high-handed way, and three more newspapers have been banned while their editors have been imprisoned.

In Lahore, this reporter was shown writ petitions moved in the high court by Mahmoud Kasuri, the prominent barris-ter who resigned last April as Bhutto's law minister on be-half of detained clients. The allegations are supported by medical evidence.

One petition concerns Malik Oasim, a barrister and former member of parliament who was secretary general of the Pakistan Muslim League. He was arrested during the

The petition says that "despite his status and age he was stripped naked and forced to lie on his belly. In his position two stout men-stood on his legs. The men jumped on him until her thought his bones would crack, while others beat him with their fists. Several times two men put their fingers in his mouth and pulled his mouth from opposite directions causing him exerucia-

Black Ant Torture

Another detainee - also a barrister — was put into a dark cell crawling with huge black ants.

What the petition calls "a new kind of torture" was apparently inflicted on a religious "Maulana" a member of the Muslim Jamenber of the Muslim Jamenber of the Muslim Jamenber of the Muslim Jamenber of the Muslim Jamen Party It says member of the Muslim Ja-miatul-Ulma Party. It says Maulana Sher Mohammed "was stripped naked and a naked prostitute was in-troduced in his cell where the prostitute molested him and police photographers took police photographers took photographs of both Maulana Sher Hohammed and the prostitute was made to sit naked on his legs."

The petition resulted in a medical check and Mally Market and Market medical check and Malik Mo-hammed Oasim was trans-ferred to hospital. But other detainees are kept in "C" class cells although, as politi-cial prisoners awaiting trial, they are entitled to "Class A"

The petition claims that "it is the systematic policy of the government to deny access to all persons who are arrested on political charges. The officers of the Punjab government specialize in torturing such arrested persons. This cannot be so systematically done without basic instrucissued by the higher

Bhutto Blamed

The opposition is passionately convinced that these 'higher authorities' are Bhutto himself, determined to show that he will brook no opposition. As evidence they point to the fact that the passage of the new "democratic" constitution was closely followed by a renewal of emergency powers and suspension the fundamental human rights enshrined in the constiopposition has systematically forge a new unity for what tried to sabotage his efforts to remained of Pakistan after the Bangladesh war and to find new friends abroad as counterweights to India.

Death Toll Rising

The national Awami Party leader, Waly Khan, has indeed failed to emerge as a national rather than a Pathan provincial leader. But it was in Baluchistan that the real trouble arose. Bhutto felt he had to choose between the friendship of the shah of Iran and the continuance of a Baluchi nationalist government which threatened to stir up the Baluchis in Iran. Bhutto chose the shah and dismissed the NAP government, replac-ing it by a minority government. The resulting crisis is A hard core of 2,000 pro-

Faulty U.S. Medical Gear Sold Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ineffective or unsafe medical devices banned in the United foreign countries where regulations are weak or don't exist, a witness told a Senate committee Friday.

Dr. Joel Nobel of the Emergency Care Research Institute of Philadelphia said that proposed legislation to tighten government regulatory power in the U.S. should also prohibit a manufacturer from selling banned equipment over-

'There is no law against selling medical devices abroad which have been seized or condemned or are obsolete in the U.S.," Nobel told a Senate health subcom-

The committee opened hearings Friday on three bills that would provide long-sought regulation of the instruments and machines that doctors and other health professionals use in their offices, clinics and hospitals.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does not have the power to require the pre-marketing clearance and testing of medical devices as it does for prescription drugs. Dr. Sidney Wolfe, head of a consumer-oriented medical study group in Washington, told the committee that a defective artificial heart valve has been associated with the deaths of at least four persons eras to the people," a com-

NAP guerrillas now operate from the hills — joined for ad operations by hundreds who return to their more homes at the end of the day. The authorities privately admit to more than a hundred deaths - mainly among soldiers — in the past three months, and the rate is in-creasng week by week. Stories of army atrocity offenses aginst women and re-taliatory "leveling" of vil-lages are circulating and widely believed. Bhutto, touring the province last week, told a public meeting that he "swears on the holyhan that these stories are not true' but added that if necessary he was prepared to hold inquiries and punish the culprits.

'Ayub Come Back' Unless there is a quick and sudden political solution, the fighting will escalate farther and may spread to the northwest frontier province a danger heightened by the presence of a new regime in Afghanistan committed to the encouragement of "greater Pakhtunistan." If the fighting does spread, unrest could en-gulf much of the rest of Pakistan where political tempers are already at bursting point. If law and order broke down, the army would step in again: "Ayub come back" slo-gans have already appeared on walls in Rawalpindi and elsewhere, reference to former leader Mohammed Ayub Kahn. None of the present actors in the political drama want the army back, however. People who write the slogans appear to be motivated by disgruntlement over runaway inflation. But the possibility of an army come-back is never far from peo-

Tourists May Have to Line Up For Canada's National Parks

day is coming when Canadians, long proud of inhabiting one of the roomiest. and loveliest countries on earth, may have to line up for their national parks.

Signs of ecological damage and an annual visitor load that reached two million last year and appears headed for five million by 1980 have led conservation-minded officials to consider controls on the number of persons using the parks each year.

Take the Rocky Mountain national parks. Convinced that Jasper, Yoho, Kootenay, Banff and Waterton can't con-tinue to accommodate the increasing number of visitors without risking damage to plant and animal life, Parks closed certain fragile areas to camping and set limits on future growth of visitor serv-

Robinson, western regional director for national parks

'It is only logical that there cannot be an open-ended in-crease in the use of the parks. As research on biological and psychological carrying capacities increases, it will be possible to set realistic limits on the numbers of people that should be using a park or portion thereof."

By biological and psy chological carrying capacities, he is referring to capacities of accommodating visitors without serious damage to plants and animals, and without appearing over-

What is being contemplated is something like this: Hikers would be issued a permit to travel certain popular backcountry trails only if the num-ber of persons already allowed to use the trail that day remains below the designated maximum. MAY COME SOON

For the Rocky Mountain national parks, it may be eight to 10 years before such measures have to be adopted, Mr.

'although there are parks in

As an indirect control on the number of people wishing to stay in the parks, the federal government is already restricting the growth of vis-itor-attracting services, such as gas stations, restaurants and overnight accommodation within park boundaries.

At a recent eastern slope land-use hearing, Roman Fod-chuk, assistant western re-gional director for Parks Canada, said Waterton, Banff and Jasper "are approaching tolerable limits in the national parks context."

He appealed to the Alberta government to help ease public demand on the parks sys-tem by encouraging accommodation and recreation de-velopment on lands bordering the parks, not within them.

"Visitors congregate in areas where facilities and services are readily accessible," Mr. Fodchuk said.

"Experience shows that as on as facilities are expanded to meet a need, the sult of such a spiral, if uncontrolled, would be the progressive degradation of large sections of the park environ-

RESTRICT SITES

Thus, in Banff National Park, it has been decided that the number of public campsites should not exceed 3.000. Its 2,500 existing sites are already filled to capacity almost every night in July and

S. Anderson, Banff National Park's chief warden, says alpine meadows recently closed to camping near Lake O'Hara and in the Larch Val-ley north of Moraine lake are so run down that they may never regain their original state.

TRAMPLE PLANTS

The feet of thousands of hikers and campers have deering plants over the years, and coarser, duller species have taken their place, he

The officials say the purpose of the national parks is plainly set forth in Section 4 of the National Parks Act of 1930, which reads:

"The parks are hereby dedicated to the people of Canada for their benefit, eduand such parks shall be made use of so as to leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations.

Acutely aware of the inher-ent conflict between use and conservation, parks officials are trying to achieve a deli-cate balance, so that Cana-dians will have their wilderness cake and eat it too, Mr.

YOU'RE GOING ABROAD.

YOU'RE A LTTLE BIT NERVOUS. YOU'RE NORMAL.

Most people on the verge of taking a vacation abroad (particularly if it's their first one) will readily admit to feeling a bit apprehensive.

And with good cause.

Because underneath all the hoopla of going, there is a feeling of uncertainty, "Will it turn out to be everything I want it to be?" Well the truth is, it depends largely on you.

If you go unprepared, then a lot of little things can crop up which can make your vacation a lot less than you want it to be.

And that's exactly what we can help you avoid. At Featherstone's we've been arranging travel for over 20 years, taking people to Europe, Latin America, Hawaii, the Pacific, Africa, and the Caribbean. And we've amassed a tremendous amount of knowledge.

The orange Orient. How sweet it is.

Imagine yourself in the ornately painted halls of Nijo Castle where the shoguns held sway over feudal lords.

Or sailing in a Chinese fishing junk. Or bargaining for ivory carvings in Hong Kong. Imagine, too, the Temple of the Emerald Buddha and the floating markets of Bangkok. Or visiting the Tiger Balm Gardens in Hong Kong. And the tea houses on Tokyo's fascinating Ginza.

This is no dream.

This is CPAir's orange Orient.

Which includes vacation packages such as our Gems of the Orient.

Come with us aboard our big, beautiful orange jet and you'll discover incredible places like Tokyo, Kyoto, Osaka, and Hong Kong, with guides who know what a Canadian wants to be shown, and what you'll enjoy discovering for yourself.

We'll also book you in hotels that offer accommodations you are accustomed to. And all the while, you'll know that we're as near as the phone. On top of all this, CPAir offers you an easy time-payment plan. Plus the fastest, most convenient service to the Orient from anywhere in Canada.

Orange is Beautiful.

(In fact, we're the only Canadian flag carrier offering service across Canada and on to the Orient. Which, incidentally, is a nice way of finding out if our Executive Jet service in Canada really deserves its fame.)

And our flight from Vancouver to Tokyo is non-stop. Which is the same sort of thing that could be said of our in-flight service, We'll serve you international cuisine twice during the flight on beautiful china and glass.

And if you'd like to enjoy a fine wine, there's a wide selection available at a nominal cost.

All of which is served to you by our well-trained, multi-lingual cabin attendants. who are some of the most friendly and skillful people in the sky.

Call CP Air or your travel agent. Just say that you're ready for a taste of Oriental delights. And that you want it sweetened with an orange.

Martine de la Falaise said it most explicitly: "In two years Deauville will be ruined. Let's face it, it's ruined already. The new people stare at you when you laugh, so we old-timers are retreating to our houses, where we can live and enjoy ourselves. We hardly go out

She had stopped by a friend's house for cocktails, gay in her little St. Laurent pleated print of limp red hearts and lips. Someone asked who the "new people"

"They're sad and glum," she said. "They don't know how to live. Maybe, in a few years, they'll learn. But meanwhile they they're spoiling

Nonetheless, the atmosphere is lively. The crowds have that life-is-a-fun-game of vacationers who do not have to worry if a Coke costs $1.25 boardwalk stand or if so many others are in the little pleated silk dress because that is clearly the right dress of the season

Mayor Michel d'Ornano, an ebullient man whose smooth. round face is a fine testimonial to Deauville's claim to health and happiness, is assertive about the need for and value of change.

"This town was based on big fortunes," he said be-tween the $45,000 Grand Prix de Deauville and the fifth race, while everyone else at the track filed out to the paddock. It was open only July and August, mostly August, and then it shut it's shell tight."

"But you have to make a town live all year round," he went on, "and the fortunes are disapperaing little by little. There were the Russians, then the Latin Americans.

NEW YORK (NYT)-It used to be so simple. A pediatrician would instruct a new parent to buy a baby book. And, with the confident air of someone who already knows a thing or two about children, the parent would respond, "Dr. Spock,

Matters have been complicated in the last few years, however, by a proliferation of baby experts. While the birth event itself has become less fashionable than ever-with the call of Zero Population Growth heard coast to coast and even vasectomies becoming so radically chic-the country has been undergoing what you might call a post-baby-boom baby

The crowd of would-be mentors vying for the right to tell you how to raise your child includes psychologists, psychiatrists, pediatricians, nutritionists, physical therapists and phi-

It includes on the one hand Mark Gerzon, who according to the publisher, is in "his early 20's" and, so the publisher adds, is probably the "youngest author to have written a book on child-raising." His book, "A Childhood for Every Child" (Outerbridge and Lazard), is a political tract on how "rehumanize the growth of the child so that he is unoppressed, unalienated, and allowed to develop creatively."

Gerzon is a former campus activist (Harvard) who writes that he plans to be a father some day.

Brazelton. His "Infants and Mothers" (Delta) is the widely read attempt to show the extensive range of normal development in infants.

With so many books out on child-rearing, the suspicion arises that they can't all be agreeing. Indeed, an examination of a score or so of the better-known and the newest books does reveal that to a certain extent they form a kind of senate of advice and dissent.

Pick Vegetable Peak

By MARY MOORE

Until the government gets around to doing something about high food prices or we get used to them we might as well be philosophical and try to cope.

I served what looked like a lovely vegetable plate last night but it had an adequate ration of protein for good nutrition: stuffed green peppers, cauliflower Parmesan, rose-bud beets, glazed acorn squash quarters. It was beau-tiful.

While our Fall vegetables are at their peak - copy the vegetarians and exploit them

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS 6 large green peppers

1/2 cup raw long grain rice 1/2 tsp. salt (first amount) 2 cups boiling water

lb. ground chuck beef lb. ground sausage

½ cup cold water 1 egg 1 tbsp. finely chopped mild onion (or instant minced onion)

1 tsp. Worcestershire % tsp. salt (second amount)

1 tsp. sugar Sauce:

One sauce

½ cup water 1-16 tsp. r tsp. rosemary (optional)

In a heavy pan add boiling water to rice and one-half teaspoon salt and bring to boil. Cover and turn off heat for five minutes. Turn heat on to simmer and cook 25 minutes longer.

Meanwhile, wash peppers and carefully remove stem, seeds and ribs. Rinse and drain upside down.

In a large bowl mix meats cold water, egg, onion, Worcestershire Sauce, threequarters teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar. As soon as rice is tender stir it into meat mixture. Fill peppers brimful with meat mixture. Arrange erect in baking dish. Mix together sauce ingredients and spoon sauce over each pepper. Cover tightly with foil or lid and bake 1½ hours at 350

TORONTO — That man in London, Ont., who, it was revealed this month, got 97 pre-scriptions for a tranquillizer from 22 doctors in one year was an exceptional case—but only because of the number of doctors he visited.

There are many people today who gulp 30 to 40 tranqillizers daily. What they're doing is perfectly legal, but could lead to physical harm

The most familiar brand of diazepam is Valium, but the identical drug is also marketed as Vivol, Paxesl, Serenack and E-Pam.

An experienced Montreal clinician estimates that Canadians are now spending about $1.5 billion a year on these drug products alone.

Diazepam always has been and still is - a drug available only on doctor's prescription. But, despite that restric-tion, there are indications that the drug is as freely available as aspirin or chewing gum.

The problem has grown so serious that the "U.S. federal drug enforcement administration has just announced its plans to add the two most popular tranquillizers, Valium and Librium, to the list of controlled drugs within two

An average daily dose is 8 to 40 milli-grams, although in severe cases, 60 milligrams may be advised by a physician. Retail cost: about $3.50 per 24

Cotton Lack May Force Shirt Off Back

TORONTO (CP) — That shirt you plan to buy and gift-wrap next Christmas may be a little more costly than you

A worldwide shortage of cotton and the devaluation of the dollar is shooting cotton-wear products skyward, spokesmen for clothing companies said this week.

'You'll see an increase of at least $2 on a good man's shirts by Christmas," said one retail dealer. "Shirts that were $12 will be $14 to $16." Children's pyjamas that are $2.98 will be $3.98 and those that are $3.98 will be $4.98, said another.

On the other end of the scale, one of Canada's largest producers of textiles said raw cotton that cost his firm less than 40 cents a pound a year ago now is quoted at 92 to 95

'Cotton prices are unheard of and unbelievable to people in the business," the spokesman said. "We used to think if it went up two or three cents, that was sharp."

Because cotton prices are set on a worldwide market, devaluation of the dollar in relation to European and Japanese currencies this year has cut Canadian purchasing power Flooded crops in the United States and Pakistan, the entry of China into the United States and Pakistan, the entry of China into the United States market and Japanese speculation also have forced prices up, the spokesman said.

The U.S. major cotton exporter, produced 13.7 million bales of cotton in 1972 but estimates for the 1973 crop—to be harvested this month—are for only 12.7 million bales, after floods washed out Mississippi fields last spring. When China opened commercial relations with the U.S. this year, one of its first moves was the purchase of 755,000

Through the years idealistic international civil servants who came to the UN because they had a heartfelt dedication found themselves work ing under politically appointed officials of inconsistent quality.

Compounding the problem, the head of the organization is the secretary general, a man whose principal concerns, of necessity, lie in international politics and who has little time to act as an administrator of the secretariat.

There is an almost unani-mous opinion here that U Thant, during his 10 years as secretary general, all but ignored his administrative responsibilities. OTTAWA .AP) - Guarded optimism about progress in shaping a new international money system was expressed Friday by Finance Minister John Turner before leaving or a fresh round of consultatackling inflation is taking everybody's time," he told a news briefing—a reference to vaulting prices that are pre-senting worldwide problems

Persistent American trade and payment difficulties stand way of substantial gains, Mr. Turner indicated in outlining Canadian policy for the annual, meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund Nairobi, Kenya, Sept. 24-28.

The most important meeting is Sunday, Sept. 23, when Canada and 19 other nations pursue latest proposals improving the machinery for currencies, borrowing, invest ing and running the whole complex international econ-my more efficiently.

There must be some progress at these talks by 1974 or the momentum for essential change will fade, Mr. Turner said.

The fund and bank meetings, involving 126 nations, will be guided by the preceding Group of 20 consultation, recent discussions in Washington and Paris show little evidence of much agreement at this time.

The U.S. has been striving to have nations piling up big reserves of gold and U.S. dollars pressured into raising the prices of their currencies so that they face tougher compe-tition in the trade world and ccumulate fewer reserves. Canada's reserves have been at a high $6 billion in gold and U.S. dollars and the Canadian dollar has stayed close to the U.S. dollar despite U.S. efforts to have it priced higher. Mr. Turner said Canada will suggest that there be international consultation about need for any country to adjust its reserves.

Mr. Turner called the vast over-supply of U.S. dollars in international circulation a "number 1 problem" that he intends to speak out about.

The loose U.S. "Euro-ollars," estimated at bedollars," tween $90 and $100 billion, have been floating back and forth, drawn in huge amounts to opportunities for speculation. Such assaults against fixed currencies can erode or wipe out a country's reserves.

controls to guard against such possibilities, Mr. Turner said. NO AGREEMENT ...

But Mr. Turner said he does not expect any agreement on converting global currencies, thereby absorbing or mopping up the fluid supply of American dollars held abroad, until the U.S. gets its whole international payments picture in better shape. That includes a continuing improvement in trade, which has shot ahead on the basis of world demand for U.S. farm products.

The finance minister will be conferring with his Common-wealth counterparts Sept. 20 and speaking to the fundbank meeting Sept. 25. He said he also expects to be seeing George Shultz, U.S. secretary of the treasury, and the dis-cussions might touch on the new decision to charge U.S. oil importers another 40 cents

Rats! Charlie Will Keep the Ball

This Small Town Has a Future

SANTA ROSA, Calif. - Rats! The way things stand, we won't get to see Lucy hold the football for Charlie Brown this fall and then snatch it away just as he's about to kick it. So there won't be any final panel showing Charlie Brown tumbling through the air with that wry, wounded look of his, muttering something about this latest triumph of treachery.

It's become a tradition, a rite of autumn, for Lucy to pull the ball away from Charlie Brown. Knowing Lucy (and to know her is to loathe her), one suspects she'd be doing it again this year, But her idea man, Charles M. Schulz, couldn't come up with a punch

"I was trying to think of one the other day," he said. "Instead I came up with another idea: Peppermint Patty running through Charlie Brown four times, crashing right over him. That led to another idea, in volving Snoopy. So I drew two football pages and I'm just tempted to let it go at that and not do one with Lucy pulling the ball away."
How many years has she been doing

We had a game after school and piloted his team to uncounted reverses. "How can we lose," Charlie once asked, "when we're so sincere?

There's a lot of little Charlie Schulz in little Charlie Brown. Things that happen to Charlie Brown in the comics once happened to Charlie Schulz in St. Paul, Minneapolis. And a lot of them happened in sports. Schulz was talking about it the other day at his studio, a modern, one-storey building situated at No. 1 Snoopy Place in Santa Rosa.

He works in a corner on the upper level "It was designed so I would work on the lower part," he said, "but I discovered I was too far away from the ceiling light and I really like this corner business — being backed into this corner. I like the coziness."

Schulz, 50, is a slender man, just under 6 feet, with wispy, greyish-brown hair, high forehead, kindly countenance. He speaks precisely with a gentle voice, often using soft chuckles for punctuation marks. He wears metal-rim glasses and a tired expression. If he worked out of Central Casting, he'd probably get calls when they needed a professor or

"I liked baseball best when I was a kid," he said. "The trouble was we never had any good places to play. The playground in my neighborhood in St. Paul was terrible, so we played a lot of our sports out in the street.

"Later, after I moved, we had to play on a crushed-rock playground and a good hot grounder through short was a home run because it just kept rolling. In the winter my dad made me a little ice rink in the backyard and we'd play hockey when the weather was right. I was never a very good skater.'

"How good were you at baseball?"
"I was a good player but I was never big and strong enough to play high school base-ball. There was no Little League or anything, so our baseball was just our neighborhood team against another one.

Schulz followed hockey as a kid and still es. He drives 1½ hours to Oakland to watch the Seals, who have lately played like one of Charlie Brown's teams. "I have season tickets," he said, "but I'm pretty much limited to going Friday nights now because of my own hockey playing and Schulz plays in a $2 million rink he built for himself and the kids of Santa Rosa. It's a handsome, Swiss-style building two blocks from his stuido.

"We've tried to correct some of the things I thought were wrong with sports pro-grams when I was a kid," he said. "I don't know if I've been successful but in our hock-ey program I declared that every boy who signed up was going to get a uniform and play on some kind of team regardless of ability. He wasn't going to sit on the bench."

"What teams use the arena?"
"We belong to the Northern California Amateur Hockey Association and our boys play teams from other towns. We have kids from about five or six up to 19."

"I'm the referee-in-chief. I've been re-

"From the coaches and players, I think, you should take only something like, 'Hey, ref, that was a bad gall.' They should never get away with swearing at you. (Schulz abstains from profanity, as well as smoking and drinking.) From the crowd I think you have to take a little-more, until they become directly personal directly personal.

'Last year I kicked a father out of the stands because several times I heard him say, 'Schulz, you're a creep!' I don't think any same person should say that and I don't think anybody should be allowed to say it, especially in this kind of game where youngsters are playing and it's supposed to be for fun."

'How often do you referee?" "Every Sunday night. We work as many as three or four games a night, which is very exhausting. I know tempers can run high. When I'm playing I get mad at the referees. But I think you should draw a line when they come personally insulting.

"I've had boys deliberately kick me, de-liberately hit me with their sticks on the faceoff, just for revenge. I've had boys spit

'Here I have built a $2 million arena for their enjoyment, not to make money for myself. I'm refereeing the games for my own myself. I'm refereeing the games for my own enjoyment, I must admit, but also for their benefit. And yet they'll do these things' with no comprehension of what they're doing. But I suppose this is the way people are."

Schulz would join those who criticize the North American obsession with winning. "No sooner does the season staft," he said, "than we hear to research how for a team; is not of we begin to record how far a team is out of first place. A game between two teams in 7th and 10 place can be just as exciting as any game. But all we're worrying about is who wins. It should be the plays, great goals being scored, great baskets being made, great overhand shots hit. These are the things that count in sports."

Worse yet Schulz said selute pass their Worse yet, Schulz said, adults pass their

"I think the Little League setup is de-plorable" he said. "First the players are judged by age. Age has almost nothing to do with evaluating or placing players. If there's a 12-year-old kid who stands 6 feet and can throw the ball so fast the other kids can't see it he shouldn't be allowed to dominate the game. He should be pushed up to a higher leaves where he is in "." league, where he fits in "Your boys went through this?"

"Oh, yeah, I saw the whole thing first hand, It's deplorable."

'I did once just a little bit. Last spring Charlie Brown's team won a game. First game they'd ever won. But they got a call to report to league headquarters. They had discovered that one of the players had a nickel bet on the outcome of the game. So a group of the parents got together and took away Charlie Brown's only victory.

"Then Linus said something like, 'in all the world, Charlie Brown, there's nothing more frightening than when a group of parents gets together.' And that's what happens all the time. A group of kids are out playing together and a group of parents gets together and decides something and mainly decision is according to their own in-

'Do you watch sports events on TV?'

"To a certain extent. I like to catch the major ones. I suppose I like football but I'm not a fanatic about it. Basketball I've never watched. Never played it. Never cared much for track because I was never into that, either. And I was a lousy swimmer so I don't watch that. I like some of the big tennis

Schulz offered to show his guest the ice arena. A public skating session was in progress when they entered. "I'll be lucky to get out of here without having to draw a Snoopy," Schulz said.

Sure enough, as he was showing his guest the arena gift shop a little girl came up and said she was from Oklahoma and handed Schulz a piece of paper to draw something on. He drew a Snoopy and wrote "SCHULZ" un-

"Oh, I wouldn't ordinarily come over here on a day like this," he said. "I could be here doing this all afternoon.'

'The townspeople haven't gotten used to

"No. Sometimes it's almost maddening. Schulz and his companion slipped out of the arena and parted. Schulz had given up more than two hours for the interview. Time to get back to the drawing board.

With the establishment of an Indian handicraft assembly line and a garment fac-tory, the town has achieved an industrial base and the Peigans have found employment within walking distance of their homes. Hugh Croweagle, economic development worker for the Indian band, says the 16 women learning to make Indian handicraft products on an assembly line are "doing way better" than expected. "We expected them to be making 10 pair (of moc-casins) a day by the end of their 16-week training period in September, and they're al-ready making 40 a day."

The band has obtained a clipper press for cutting animal hides into patterns for moccasins, handbags and Indian clothing. Use of the press assures that wholesale costs to prospective retail outlets in Alberta and British Columbia will be competitive.

Both the handicraft assembly line and the garment fac-tory were initially financed by the federal Indian affairs department but hope to become

Call it the Grand Experi-

It's cost one local restaura-teur more than six grand this month; however, it's too early to tell if the experiment was a success or a failure.

I'm keeping my fingers crossed for a success.

Because it's something this town sorely needs.

A policy of swinging top-name entertainment through the Garden City on a fort-nightly gig basis . . . which not only is good for his room, stimulating return visits — al-though the calibre of food he nough the cambre of food he serves should guarantee that in itself — but good for the city in that it might put a boot into the butt of some of the other club owners here to shell out a few shekels on tal-ent, or at least to give the heave to some house bands have been redundant

The cafe in question is Felice's Ristorante in Nootka Court, one of the city's plushest rooms to begin with.

And, Felice's September Song policy was entered into in a deliberate doublebarelled ploy.

is why I waited until nearly Labor Day to begin it."

It's not exactly the easiest thing in the world to gauge audience response in the supper club atmosphere which is completely different for the somewhat artificial atmosphere of the concert hall.

RESTAURANT GARDENS. KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY... EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY! Skilful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired attractions.

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." This alone is worth coming to see.

BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar service.

BUTCHART GARDENS SPARKLING ENTERTAINMENT. Adding a touch of hilarity in a musical way the "Butchart Gardeners" will entertain you Mon.-Fri. inclusive in the atternoon, and evenings, 1:30-3:30 p.m. and 6:00-8:00 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday afternoon 1:00-3:00 p.m. a group of zany but very talented musicians "The Butchart Buskers" with John Dunbar, will provide the fun. Plus colour films every evening of the week at dusk. "Helicopter Canada" or "Mountains of the Sea."

BUTCHART GARDENS SUGGESTS: Combine it all into one grand, thrifty outing — the Gardens by daylight ... entertainment ... romantic night lighting ... featuring the Sunken Gardens ... and the Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars". Regular admission covers it all. For added pleasure, dine in the Floral Restaurant.

East Meets West in Exciting Theatrical Exchange

Single most exciting thing that's happened in the last two seasons, says Bastion theatre's artistic director Edwin Stephenson, is the eastwest exchange of plays that is part of the up-coming season.

"It's taken a year-and-a-half to arrange but it's well worth all the effort."

*WASHINGTON (WP) — Environmental Protection Agency sources said Friday that endrin, a widely used insecticide in the same family as DDT, will probably be banned for most uses in the near future.

An internal EPA scientific study is expected to conclude that the insecticide kills and debilitates birds, fish, some domesticated animals and possibly man.

Should the EPA decide to ban edrin, a notice of registration cancellation would be issued — to be almost certainly followed by a hearings process that could drag on for years. EPA official Henry Korp, in charge of pesticides programs, said these sources were probably right that the study group's findings will be anti-endrin. But although other sources said that a cancellation decision may come much sooner, Korp said it was unlikely to come for some time, perhaps two to three months. Endrin is used to kill pests that attack cotton crops, some cereal grains and fruit trees. Its chemical family — chlorinated hydrocarbons — includes the now-banned PDT. Two other insecticides in the same family, aldrin and dieldrin, have already been cited as environmental hazards by the EPA, but appeals by the manufacturers have stymied final The soon-to-be-concluded EPA study coincides with re cently published reports that endrin has killed birds, several thousand fish and undetermined numbers of rabbits and squirrels in Cherokee County, Ala: EPA investigators found a lake in the cotton-producing-county contaminated with lethal

Formerly vice-chairman vice-chairman UDA, Herron gave up the posts in June to seek a seat in the new Uster assembly. He was unsuccessful.

Shortly before the June assembly elections, gunmen bust into his East Belfast home and shot dead his 18-year-old brother-in-law, Mi-chael Wilson. It was thought then that Herron, 36, was the target of the killers, but he was not there at the time.

Meanwhile, bombs returned Friday to Northern Ireland after several days of relative peace. A bomb alert at Belfast's Aldergrove Airport halted air traffic for several hours while security forces found and safely defonated 200 pounds of explosives in a car parked beside the airport.

In the city centre, the city hall and hotel were damaged Friday night by a 100-pound bomb in a parked truck outside the hotel.

DEAR DR: MILLER: My father said Green, my chame-leon, isn't hibernating like I thought. He said he is dead. He said he could tell by the smell and he does smell pretty bad. He doesn't move, either, and he hasn't for a long time. If he is dead, like Dad said, and I think he is, don't you, I think I know what killed him. It was about Halloween when I fed him that black widow spider. The next day the spider was gone and I think Greeny ate it but it could have poisoned him, couldn't it?-D.D.

Dear D.D.: American chameleons commonly consume spiders of various species in-cluding black widows. In fact, in many Southern areas, a single such lizard might con-sume several of these poison-ous pests per week. There-fore, it is unlikely the widow was responsible. Be sure, be-fore getting your next chameleon, that you know every-thing possible about how to take care of it properly. Aside from proper food which may range from soft young meal-worms to flies to crickets, the two most important points in keeping the chameleon going are a temperature of around 70 to 75 degrees and provision for adequate moisture. best way to supply this is to spray him twice daily with a fine mist atomizer. Spray him directly and-or the greenery which you have placed in the cage. (Be very sure the greens are not contaminated with pesticides.) Water in a bowl isn't harmful, it just isn't adequate for supplying a chameleon's needs because he will rarely drink from it.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our two dogs from different famiare now gone. We are going to settle for a single replacement. seems the smarter. They both appear in equally good health and equally attractive in other respects. Is there any way you know of that we can tell which one of these twowill turn out the better, A.D.

DEAR A.D.: General-

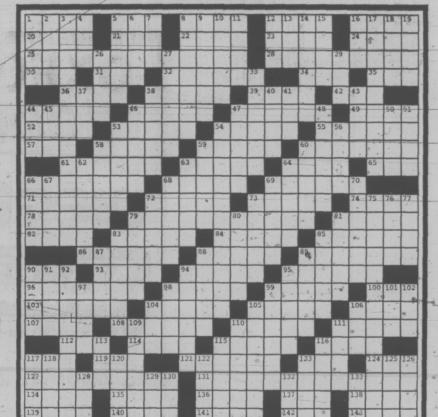

izations, by their very nature, tend to be inaccurate in specific circumstances. Even so, here is a generalization or two to ponder: The larger animal tends to be the quieter and more "thoughtful." It may be able to learn more and retain it longer than the smaller one. However, the tiny tot will tend to learn more quickly and usually be more lively. Unfortunately, the smaller one tends to be more timid, more nervous, and far more susceptible to

DEAR DR. MILLER: You know how mousey mice smell. In spite of this fact, my sister than my rats. She bases this rack on the wall of their cage. If it drops on the floor, they won't eat it. My rats use the same kind of a rack but do, in fact, eat from the floor instead. What they do is to pull their food down, let it fall on the floor, and then pick it up, with their forenews and eat it. with their forepaws and eat it. this mean, as she claims, that mice really are cleaner than my rats? Or are my rats merely sloppier in their table manners?-M.S.

DEAR M.S.: It is true that if there is plenty of food available, mice will ignore food that drops on the floor. Your rats, along with many others, simply prefer to eat with their hands if possible. They are hauling it out of the rack and dropping on the floor only so they CAN pick it up with their hands to eat it. This may make them slightly less neat as far as table manners are concerned. But then, most species who eat with their hands tend to be a bit sloppy

Doughnut Delight

Not too many of man's inventions can roll with the punches like the timetested inner tube, a rarity now in the era of tubeless tires. When one comes along in a giant size, youngsters like Tim Perry, sister Kathy, brother Jim, and Linda Jackson, all of Blanshard Court, found it irresistible as make-believe boat, tunnel and wrestling mat. It offered another plus, too. After a long dry summer, even a grassy lawn gets baked hard but a big rubber doughnut makes for pleasingly soft landings. (John McKay photos.)

Al Scott, 22, of 4541 Bissenden Place, Victoria, bought one of the new para sail chutes three weeks ago. He ordered it from California at a cost of $380.

Since he bought the chute, Scott has been up three times, gliding and floating 200 feet above Elk Lake. 'I got right up'in the air the Scott escaped uninjured, except for a ringing in his ears, but the accident hasn't put him off parasailing.

As soon as he can get the two-foot rip mended, he'll be back up again. "It's really quite simple. All you need is common sense.'

The chute is much like a normal sky diving chute. It's about 25 feet wide and attached by lines to whoever is brave enough to give it a try. A 300-foot rope joins the boat and the flier. The flier stands on the ground near the water, preferably on a grassy area with a slight incline.

SICK FEELING TO SOME phobic may become violent if forced to attend, He traces the root of the problem to the child's home life.

Victoria seem relatively few, says a local Dr. Philip Ney suggests that situation is flattering to parents and the school system in Victoria or to both.

A phobia is an intense fear and school phobia occurs when children with "separation anxiety" are sent to school.

While doctors in Toronto anticipate an outbreak of school phobia each fall, cases in

Dr. Quentin Rae-Grant, chief psychiatrist at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, says there is a flood of school phobia after

He described the symptoms as nausea, dizziness, diarrhea, headaches, heart palpitations, breathing difficulties, cramps and eye-

A school phobic child has an overwhelming fear of entering a classroom and refuses to budge from home despite coaxing, threats and punishment, said Rae-Grant.

This can produce the paradox of children with above-average intelligence screaming, nervous tics and enduring corporal punishment rather than agreeing to go to

Dr. James Wilkes of the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in Toronto says the school

While the mother may honestly believe that she wants her child to go to school, by subtle messages she'll be telling him that it's all right to stay at home with her."

The mother is often over-protective and dominating, he said, and the child becomes so bound to her that the prospect of leaving unleashes a tidal wave of anxiety, he said.

Doctors agree that part of the fear arises from the child fearing he will be beaten up by school bullies or humiliated by an insensitive teacher.

Ney says there has usually been a major separation in the life of the school phobic before school comes along, possibly the loss of a parent or desertion by a father.

Already frithtened badly by one separation, the phobic sees starting school or returning to it as another break. Sensitive teachers are aware of the dif-ference between a truant and a phobic, says

Ney. The phobic tends to stay home while the uant heads for some place like the Ogden Point breakwater.

It's important for parents to be objective and matter-of-fact about their children to school - a brief goodbye and a fast departure, he says.

IT IS ALWAYS A TEMPTAtion to tell the other fellow how to run his show, and as proof of that fact, here's child psychiatrist Dr. Philip Ney muddling about in education's overcrowded kitchen. Dr. Ney would have Greater Victoria school board appoint a team of teachers and laymen to weed incompetents from the teaching profession. In theory, this is a smart notion. In practice, and with due respect for Dr. Ney's sec-ondary role as school trustee. I think that it would produce about the same results as an attempt by a layman-psychiacombo to finger misfit psychiatrists.

If they could conquer the medical man's taboo against snitching on a colleague, the psychiatrists would no doubt turn in sound evaluations. But any professional who valued his rating would be appalled at the prospect of a lay judg-ment much too likely to be based on prejudice and misinformation rather than on knowledge. I'm not sure just how the present mania for rounding up a klatch of laymen and turning them loose on the ex-perts got its start. Perhaps it is traceable to the fine hand of public relations, an art in which the folksy approach to difficult problems has its uses.

The teacher, always a prime target for the uninstructed critic, is peculiarly vulnerable to harpoonings of this sort.

To begin with, there are so

Their salaries, the schools in which they teach and most of their aids to teaching, are paid for from taxes — a fact. of which the property-owner is sharply reminded when his annual assessment arrives.

At a superficial viewing, the job for which they receive more dollars per month that Miss Nelly of the little red schoolhouse era earned in year looks ridiculously easy.

Add to the mix parental bias and dislike for authority, and the teacher does not emerge as one of our more pular figures. I find it significant that few voices were raised in protest when a Social Credit government made B.C. Teachers Federation the victim of a union-breaking

A Distinct Smell of the Witch Hunt

I have had a good deal to do with teachers through the years. Not all of these enounters have been amiable. But the impression I retain is that the run-of-the-mill teacher returns far more for his pay than his critics realize or are willing to believe.

cles can happen.

I admire the teacher for what he is and what he does. I think that he performs re-markably well under the strictures of our mass education system. And I hope that through his Federation, he-will register the strongest pos-sible objection to this latest attack on his profession.

I hope further that no teachsociate himself with Dr. Ney's Far be it from me to claim that British Columbia has no incompetent teachers, even though I suspect their number is very much lower than the one per cent minimum cited by Dr. Ney.

It is my understanding that Victoria Teachers Association checks out all complaints against members that are brought to its attention. might be well, however, if the Federation moved to protect both its members and the children they teach by appointing an investigative board from within its own

Perhaps by stringent self-policing of this sort, the men and women enrolled in a largely thankless profession can stave off interference that smells rather too strongly of the witchhunt.

Interference, I might add, that will not benefit a school system with troubles enough on its shoulders, but that could do it grave harm.

FLAGG . . . coup inevitable

"He was caught between two poles," he said, "that-were polarized—the extreme on the same level. There has to be an economic solution," "I find the whole situation in South America frightening," Flagg admitted. Now based at Lima, he recalled the days when he worked in Chile.

"I remember the early days when I saw a man walk into a store and ask for a single razor blade, the cheapest kind; and having to walk out again because he didn't have enough money."

Flagg stressed that his ob-problem were simply that-observations: "I don't think the Church is an amateur political party," he said, "We have to have a spiritual answer or there is no compass to guide them by."

He doubted that the military will want to remain as the government power. What the military wants is a democracy. Often the military will argue that they are the guardians of the people, both outside and inside the country," he said.

He cited Argentina's military coup in the 1960s as an Flagg is in Victoria to peak at three Anglican churches on Sunday — St. Luke's at 9:30 a.m., St. Mary's at 11 a.m. and St. Barnabas at 7:30 p.m. Consecrated bishop in 1969, Flagg has spent most of his years in South America as an agricultural missionary, con-centrating on developing agricultural co-operatives among the Indian people, social, education and medical work. "There is very little Angli-can presence," he said in Chile, northern Argentina, Paraguay, Bolivia or Peru. He said the heavy domination of the Roman Church on the side of the capitalists was changing, with some of its priests tending to be "more extreme left" than
